THURSDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 31. A Scorch GIRL'S DREAM.—A letter from Blairgowrie, Scotland, published in a Dundee paper, sells this story of a dream :

The subject of the story is, or was, a young married woman, whose maiden name was Jes-sie Ellon, the daughter of Charles Ellon, who has been cattleman for many years to Mr. Geekie, of Rosemount, about two miles from Blairgowrie. Jessie lived with her father before she was married, and was employed occasionally at farm work, along with other young women belonging to the neighborhood. While her companions of a remarkable dream she tiad, more than once in succession, which caused her much anxiety and uneasiness at the time. She thought she stood in the centre of a circle, which was like a hay-rick stand, or something of that kind, and saw in numeral letters two X's, a V, and other symbols, which, taken together, left an indelible impression on her mind that she would die on the 25th of September, 1867, just two years after the vision. Being out of the ordinary course of dreaming, the recital caused an unusual sensation at the time, but the gossips made light of the matter, comforting her with the assurance that, according to the "book of fate," the "contrary" would result in her marriage.

About a year after her dream Jessie was married to a young tradesman named Bowman, belonging to Coupar Angus, and shortly after she removed there to live with her husband! It appears that her health gave way soon after this, and she was believed to have fallen into a this, and she was believed to have fallen into a consumption, and the next time we hear of her she had come to Rosemount to try and recruit herself at a little harvest work just a fortnight since. She grew worse, took to bed, and lingered till, at eight o'clock on the evening of Wednesday, the 25th of September, she died, wednesday, the 25th of September, she died, aged twenty-six years.
